

Adult-child Interaction: Communicating to Support Learning

In supportive early childhood settings, adults nurturing relationships with children serve as the foundation for learning. This media program provides strategies for interacting with children in three key areas: participating as partners in childrens play; conversing with children; and encouraging learning in curriculum content areas. With footage from the HighScope Demonstration Preschool, this program offers an illustrated summary of strategies in these three areas, as well as a selection of unnarrated scenes of adult-child interactions to discuss and consider. Includes viewer guide.
