

I Hear...Love (A Different Road) (Volume 2)

Kate Mason at twenty-three, feels as though she has lived through enough sorrow and pain to fill generations of lifetimes. On the outside, she wears a beautiful mask. On the inside, she's a million, jagged, broken pieces. She blames herself, not only for her parents' death, but for her brother's blindness. For Kate there is no hope of silencing the chaos in her head. There is no forgiveness for what she has done to her family, or herself. There will never be anyone to love her and her shattered past. Cooper Sullivan recently moved to Malibu and was immediately adopted by a stray black lab he named Sadie. Cooper soon realizes there is something very special about Sadie when she is drawn to a beautiful woman, with a kaleidoscope of emotions that churn deep in her eyes. Cooper sees Kate's broken pieces scattered all around her, but he finds himself wanting to show her just how beautiful each piece is. Underneath her mask, he sees an even more beautiful woman, and he wants to help her put the broken pieces back together. When you are broken you can never be fully put back together. There are always tiny slivers here and there that can never be replaced. Can Kate finally silence the noise enough to forgive herself and hear the one thing she desires most? Can one truly hear love?
