

Christendom in Conflict - Cause and Effect

The writing contained in Christendom in Conflict is the result many years of observations, study, and the resulting conclusion that many of the things we witness in the modern churches bear only a nominal resemblance to what is read in the New Testament in particular. There are positive observations, but also some negative observations which might challenge the thinking of some mainline Christian churches. There is also a significant amount of writing dedicated to explanations of core values and practices outlined in the New Testament.
