

England and the War (1914-1915) by Andre Chevrillon: With a Preface by Rudyard Kipling (Classic Reprint)

Excerpt from England and the War (1914-1915) by Andre Chevrillon: With a Preface by Rudyard Kipling. England and the War was first published as a series of articles in the Revue de Paris from November, 1915, to January, 1916. It deals with a phase of England's war effort and life which may now be considered as closed. Some of the facts recorded here (for instance, what we say of England's first success against the German submarines) have even ceased to be true - though this too may be but a transient phase. Yet in the period described here arose the forces which make England's present achievements possible - arose changes in her modes of thought and life, which will affect the whole of her future. What makes the eighteen months with which this book is specially concerned the essential period in the English history of the war, is that it is characterized by facts, chiefly psychological.
