

Fenicios en Tartesos: nuevas perspectivas (British Archaeological Reports International Series)

This publication offers new perspectives on the Phoenician presence in the Iberian Peninsula. The authors reflect on a number of topics: the diversity of origins and identities of the Phoenician communities, their diversity, their evolution in the colonial and post-colonial landscapes, the making of new political and ethnic identities, the ways in which the Greeks and Roman perceived and recorded them, the criteria for the identification of indigenous and colonial in the archaeological record, and the role of religion among the Phoenicians in terms of unity and diversity.
